

Dr Gordon Cable AM is a well-known and respected colleague in aerospace medicine in Australia. Since 1992 he has worked as a consultant to the Royal Australian Air Force, he is an honorary life member of the Australasian Society of Aerospace Medicine (ASAM) and previously held roles as a Company Director and Chair of the Space Life Sciences Committee for ASAM.

Dr Cable holds Fellowships with the Australasian College of Aerospace Medicine, the Aerospace Medicine Association, the Royal Aeronautical Society, and the International Academy of Aviation and Space Medicine.

Dr Cable is a Clinical Associate Professor in the School of Medicine at the University of Adelaide and previously held a role of Senior Lecturer at the University of Tasmania where he founded the Humans in Space course as part of the Healthcare in Remote and Extreme Environments Faculty.

Dr Cable is also a Company Director and co-founder of Human Aerospace Pty Ltd and held the inaugural role in Space Medicine and Life Sciences with the Australian Space Agency.